MUSIC IN SCHOOL

Music plays a central role in the daily life of the school; music is played in each assembly with live performances by our students every Friday. A significant number of pupils have instrumental lessons in school and many are members of the ensembles listed above. The school has hosted master-classes given by musicians from Opera North and academics from Leeds University. We are fortunate to get free tickets to local concerts and many students enjoy the opportunity to hear professional musicians perform. As well as weekly lunchtime recitals, the music department hosts several concerts in school during the academic year and the choirs and ensembles take a prominent role in the school Carol Service and Commemoration Service in Ripon Cathedral. The choirs have recorded a disc of Christmas music and will go on tour in the summer of 2019. Many students are in county and even national youth choirs and ensembles. In recent years several students have gone on to be awarded choral or instrumental scholarships to Oxbridge and Russell Group universities.

MUSIC IN THE COMMUNITY

The department is developing strong links within Ripon, playing concerts for local charities and festivals and feeding its pupils into local orchestras, choirs and bands. Most recently, school ensembles have performed at the Northern Aldborough Festival, The Great Yorkshire Show, the Ripon Cathedral Festival and Durham University. In doing so our pupils spread the message of the quality of their work, the enjoyment they take from the subject, and the thriving musical culture that exists at the school.
